Children's Aid Society Celebrates Anniversary

CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY of Monroe County — a Community Chest agency — marked its 25th anniversary last night with a party for the men and women who "really make the agency work" — the foster parents.

Honored guests at the meeting, held in the YMCA, were most of the 24 foster families who provide care for homeless children who are wards of the agency.

At the meeting, Mrs. Jean Albert, executive secretary, called attention to the growing need in this county for family counseling service. At present, Children's Aid is doing a great deal of this kind of service, she said.

But it is still thought of only in terms of the care it gives to children from broken families or of unwed mothers. One of the basic aims of the agency, she noted, is to help reestablish the "own home" of the child involved wherever this is possible.

Family counseling. Mrs. Albert said, "might be carried out" on an experimental and limited basis during the coming year by the agency.

To illustrate work done by the agency during each year a play was presented. Titled "CAS of Monroe County In Action," the play showed, in brief scenes, a "typical day in the agency office," a caseworker's call on a foster family and a "typical day in a foster home."

Participants in the play were

Doris Braerman, Mrs. Albert, Mrs. A. G. Gearhart, Mrs. Leone Willhoite, all members of the staff who appeared as themselves; Mrs. Horace Butler, Mrs. Jack Harris, Edward Flory, Ruth Flory, Mary Jane Gilpin, John Gilpin, Donald Gilpin and Walter McClelland.

The play was written and compiled by Mrs. Albert. Mrs. B. L. Fansler served as prompter and director. Leonard Randolph was the narrator.

Music for the program was provided by "The Chorale" a group of students from East Stroudsburg Area High School under the direction of Robert Hartman.

Gifts to each foster family were presented by Miss Roberta Andrews, assistant director of Children's Aid Society of Pennsylvania and the county agency department and Mrs. Frank L. Patterson Jr., a local board member and chairman of the State Advisory Committee of CAS of Pennsylvania.

Foster parents honored at the meeting were: Mr. and Mrs. Fred Anthony, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Beers, Mr. and Mrs. Blair Bell, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Berger, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin DeWitt, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Dietrich (who have been foster parents since the first year Children's Aid existed in Monroe County); Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Edinger, Mr. and Mrs. William Elias, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Frailey, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Getz, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Gower, Mr. and Mrs. George Hafer, Mr. and Mrs. Seward Hawk, Mr. and Mrs. George Hartman, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hill, Rev. and Mrs. Edward Houston, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Keiper, Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Kunkle, Mrs. Erva Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Moncrief, Mrs. Fred Neupert, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Neffett, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Schuler, and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Thomas.

Special guests were Miss Andrews and Dr. Elizabeth Lawler, general secretary of Children's Aid Society of Pennsylvania and Miss Ethel West, executive secretary of the Monroe County Community Chest.

Members of the social committee were: Mrs. Jesse S. Flory, chairman; Mrs. Fred Davis, Mrs. Thomas Knepp, and Mrs. Adolph Rake.

Republicans Seek Time For Answer

By The Associated Press

GOP Chairman Leonard Hall said yesterday the Republicans want equal time on the air to reply to the Adlai Stevenson-Estes Kefauver debate in Florida even though it "hardly seems worth answering."

"The biggest flop of the year," Hall called this meeting of the two Democrats who are campaigning to get the nomination to run against President Eisenhower.

Sen. Ellender (D-La.), chairman of the Senate-House Conference Committee, contented himself with explaining the provisions of the agreement and calling them "fair."

Sen. Aiken (D-Vt.), senior GOP member of the Senate Agriculture Committee, commented:

"Although I do not believe the bill will be nearly as effective as some of its advocates hope, I do believe it is the best that can be secured at this session of Congress."

Asked by reporters earlier whether anything in the compromise bill might invite a veto, Ellender exclaimed: "No! Great God! No!"

Barr Appears Certain To Retain Position

HARRISBURG, May 22 — Sen. Joseph M. Barr (D-Allegheny) appeared tonight to be virtually certain of relection as Democratic state chairman.

The 113-member Democratic State Committee meets tomorrow to formalize the Barr election since no other candidates are in sight.

Expectation

The committee also was expected to reelect Mayor David L. Lawrence of Pittsburgh as national committeeman and Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller, Slippery Rock, national committeewoman.

The other committee officers in line for another term are Mrs. Louis John, West Chester, vice chairman; Miss Genevieve Blatt, Pittsburgh, secretary of internal affairs, as secretary, and J. Warren Mickle, Harrisburg, state treasurer.

Bills Introduced

WASHINGTON, May 22 — Identical bills providing for the creation of a joint congressional committee to review the government's foreign aid program have been introduced by Representatives Harrison (D-Va.) and Church (R-HI).

Britain Selects H-Weapon Base

LONDON, May 22 — An authoritative source said today Christmas Island, the big Pacific atoll claimed by the United States will be used as a base for Britain's first hydrogen weapons tests next year.

There was no official confirmation, but an Admiralty spokesman said preparations have been started for setting up an airfield on the Pacific island which lies on the equator roughly halfway between Australia and California.

Navy Chief Backs Service

NEW YORK, May 22 — Secretary of the Navy Charles S. Thomas said today the Navy "definitely" could keep sea lanes open in event of war.

Democrats in Missouri showed every sign of giving their favorite son support to Sen. Stuart Symington. He is scheduled to get all of Missouri's 38 convention votes at a state convention next week.

In the favorite son field, Symington has the advantage of being a well-organized labor and Northern Democrats, while somewhat more acceptable to Southerners than some other possible nominees would be.

State Legislature Ends Record Term

Adjournment Comes After 16 Months

HARRISBURG, May 22 (AP) — The 1955-56 Legislature ended itself finally into a niche in Pennsylvania history today.

The longest and costliest legislative session in the annals of the Commonwealth simply ran out of steam and died after 16½ months.

Absent from the final adjournment of the 141st General Assembly was the feverish bustle and bustle that featured windups in the past.

The official time for adjournment was recorded as 1:45 p.m. (EST).

Actually, Speaker Andrews (D-Cambria) banged the final gavel in the House at 2:11 p.m. (EST). In the Senate, the end came at 2:20 p.m. (EST) under the gavel of Lt. Gov. Furman, Senate president.

Confusion

And there was confusion right to the end. The 1:45 p.m. recorded deadline wasn't met because the official copy of a House bill on Philadelphia Highways was found to be mislaid.

It was recovered but not before Rep. Frank (D-Lehigh), a freshman lawmaker, told the House:

"Seventeen months ago I came here as a confused legislator and I'd like to tell you I'm still confused today."

And the lawmakers fidgeted even more when Sen. Pechan (R-Armstrong) decided to make a 10-minute speech out of what originally was scheduled to be a routine adjournment motion.

Sen. Barr, Democratic state chairman, issued a statement blaming the Senate GOP majority for what he termed "planned obstructionism" in prolonging the session.

"It was a campaign of harassment and procrastination in the hope it would discredit the Leader and strengthen the drive of U.S. Sen. James H. Duff for reelection," said Barr.

Gov. Leader, however, was more moderate in his comments on the Legislature.

"In spite of bitter Republican opposition in the politically divided Legislature and the staggering financial problem inherited from our predecessors, we have in this session put on the books an unparalleled series of humanitarian and public-spirited laws," he said in a statement.

The governor said his administration has traveled "a substantial distance" toward fulfillment of what he termed pledges to bring "progressive, humanitarian government" to Pennsylvania.

Republicans maintained an official silence on adjournment.

Final Vote

The final vote on actual legislation in both houses came on a compromise to pay state aid for municipal sewage treatment plant construction.

The Senate originally held out for a $2,600,000 appropriation but went along with the House figure of $3,200,000. Added was a provision that improvements made since 1937 to sewage treatment plants built before then could be included for state aid.

The law permits allocations to municipalities on the basis of two per cent a year on what communities have paid for sewage treatment plants and sewer systems.

Both chambers swiftly agreed to accept the general appropriation bill compromise. Its printing precluded adjournment last night.

Thomas Development

Thomas pointed to development of a "high-speed, deep-diving submarine, a type we never before faced."

He said the Navy, in event of war, would seek to destroy enemy submarines in their "furthest hideaways—where they are built, where they are based, where they train" and in "their pathways to the sea."

The United States, he said, has built "killer" submarines, developed long-range aircraft, blimps, the helicopter, the atomic submarine, and sound devices which increase the "detection potential."

Reds Work Passport Racket

WASHINGTON, May 22 (AP) — The House Committee on Un-American Activities reported today has evidence American passports have been an important instrument in the Soviet espionage operation for years.

Chairman Walter (D-Pa.) said there has been a "skillfully organized Communist passport conspiracy by which party members and fellow travelers are enabled to travel abroad in the service of Soviet propaganda and subversion."

The committee will open hearings tomorrow on whether further legislation on issuance of passports is needed.

The committee listed its first witnesses as Willard Ephraim, director of the World Fellowship and executive secretary of the U. S. sponsoring committee of the Vienna peace conference in 1952; and William Wallace, an undercover agent. It identified Wallace as having been a member of the national board of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America and secretary of the union's Dist. 4, comprising New Jersey and New York.

"The committee has obtained passport applications in which travelers have concealed their real destinations," Walter said. "The method used to secure passports in many instances which have come to the attention of the committee, involve fraud, if not perjury. Beyond this, evidence received by the committee showed that American passports have for years been an important instrument in the Soviet espionage operation," the Easton Democrat said.

House Committee Approves Increase In Postal Rates

WASHINGTON, May 22 (AP) — The House Post Office Committee today approved a $432,000 increase in postal rates which Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey says may spell the difference between a balanced and an unbalanced federal budget.

Confusion

The committee voted behind closed doors to boost the present 3-cent letter rate to four cents and hike the air mail charge from 6 cents an ounce to 7 cents.

Postmaster General Summerfield has estimated the higher letter rate would cost the average family 10 to 12 cents a month.

Second-Class

Bigger increases were approved for second-class mail — chiefly for third-class advertising matter.

Rejected was an Eisenhower administration proposal that rate-setting authority be transferred from Congress to a postal rate commission.

The committee reportedly voted 13-8 for the postal rate bill, which apparently has drawn increasing support since it was advanced by the administration early in the session.

Belief

He said it has "started out with no intention of recommending roles and missions" for the military services, but now is inclined to believe that "we are going to have to make recommendations."

Symington was secretary of the Air Force under President Truman.

The other subcommittee which announced plans for an investigation is headed by Sen. Chavez (D-NM) and handles appropriation matters.

Secretary Wilson talked to reporters after he and Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, paid their weekly call on Eisenhowers.

The governor said his administration has traveled "a substantial distance" toward fulfillment of what he termed pledges to bring "progressive, humanitarian government" to Pennsylvania.

Republicans maintained an official silence on adjournment.

Lutherans Approve $2,009,925 At Buck Hill Conference

$696,530
To Be Used
By Ministerium

BUCK HILL FALLS — A $2,009,925 budget yesterday was approved at a business session of the 20th annual convention of the Lutheran Ministerium of Pennsylvania, which is meeting through tomorrow at The Inn here.

Of this amount, $696,530 will be directly used by the Ministerium.

The question of the administration of Holy Communion in the 546 churches in the Ministerium was presented to the 700 delegates last night. However, debate on the controversial question was postponed until this morning.

The executive board has presented its statement on the matter, and permission was granted to Dr. Luther D. Reed, president emeritus of Lutheran Theological Seminary, Philadelphia, to distribute a minority report.

Major Concern

The major concern in the controversy centers about corporate Communion—that is, Communion by a special group, such as a church choir.

Special tribute was paid yesterday afternoon to Dr. G. H. Bechtold of Philadelphia by the Board of Inner Missions and the Synod in recognition of his service as executive secretary of the missions board since 1922. He will retire from the post at the end of this year.

"He has rendered distinguished service and afforded outstanding leadership in the church's works of serving love," was the tribute paid to Dr. Bechtold by the Ministerium's president, Dr. Charles M. Cooper.

The Board of Inner Missions report called attention to the problems of the retarded child, and said the denomination has begun a day school program at Kensington Dispensary in Philadelphia to help such youngsters.

The report also noted that the Allentown Conference is taking steps to establish a Lutheran hospital in the Bethlehem area. It is to be known as the Muhlenberg Medical Center.

Northern Counties Have Much At Stake In Keystone Shortway Turnpike

Pressure Necessary To Back Up Arguments For Superhighway

Prospects aren't too bright for early construction of the Keystone Shortway Turnpike between Stroudsburg and Sharon.

In fact, it seems likely the superhighway stands little chance of being built in the foreseeable future unless a great amount of pressure is brought to bear on the proper authorities.

Z. H. Confair, chairman of Shortway Turnpike Association, said here Monday the 38 counties which comprise the northern half of Pennsylvania stand to benefit immeasurably through construction of the cross-state highway.

Because of the importance transportation plays in our economic life, the northern tier of counties—including Monroe—are at a distinct disadvantage when competing against the 29 southern counties which lie close to the Pennsylvania Turnpike. Population and industrial figures confirm this statement.

A further deterrent to industries and businesses which might want to locate somewhere in Northern Pennsylvania is the New York Thruway which runs across the central part of upstate New York and offers advantages which this half of Pennsylvania does not present in the way of a modern superhighway.

The northern counties thus are caught in the middle of an economic vice which has the Pennsylvania Turnpike as one jaw and the New York Thruway as the other. Hence, Confair's statement that construction of the Shortway is an economic necessity for the northern half of Pennsylvania.

He told of opposition to the Shortway proposal from other sections of the state, notably Philadelphia, and referred to the pressure these sources have exerted on the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission.

Although a feasibility survey of the Stroudsburg-Sharon route has been approved by the Legislature and Gov. George M.

Red Chinese Talk Nonsense By Claiming Japan Can Get Along Without Help Of U.S.

Japan has been short of food since the Meiji Revolution (1868) opened the modern era of that country's history. The food question has always been uppermost in the minds of Japanese statesmen, as only 20 percent of that country's land is arable and as the population increased, it was necessary to import larger quantities of rice, wheat, and soy beans from other countries. Many Japanese thought that the best solution for Japan's shortage of food was to conquer Manchuria. That the Japanese did in 1931, but it proved to be a mistake because the United States objected to it and Japan became, in time, involved in a devastating war which brought only defeat.

Since then Japan not only lost all the territory acquired subsequent to 1931, but also Formosa which had come into Japanese possession in 1895. From Formosa, Japan had obtained tea, sugar and other food products.

So, the United States has been contracting to sell Japan sorely needed foodstuffs from our vast surpluses. This has stirred up a tirade among the Communists, particularly in Peking, where plans have long been afoot for a Marxist revolution in Japan based on an inadequate food supply. The Chinese International Service in radio broadcasts in Japanese devoted itself to a

We lack details but would assume a labor circus would be first to take a stand against any "cuts" for the sword swallower, and want double pay for the two-headed boy . . . General Electric

Leader, the commission has not undertaken it as yet. It is now too late in the season to make an aerial survey of the route, an important phase of the work, so there is little hope that anything will be done until after the leaves fall from the trees this Autumn.

One possibility exists that merits the attention of everyone interested in expediting the project. That is to persuade the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads to include the Shortway in the 50 billion dollar federal highway program now before Congress.

The fact that the Shortway would be an important military highway because of its proximity to defense installations and industries would rate it priority over a number of highways already earmarked for federal funds under the interstate road phase of the program.

The Daily Record believes the Shortway proposal is economically sound and should have the support of local manufacturers, businesses and resorts, as well as truckers and the motoring public.

As Confair pointed out, the Shortway would interface with a network of highways such as the Northeastern Turnpike Extension and therefore would not be a road leading to no place in particular.

With construction of a superhighway from New York City to Delaware Water Gap, he explained, the Shortway would be within easy access on the east to 12,000,000 people. At the Sharon end, the Ohio Turnpike and other highways would have a potential drawing power of 30,000,000 persons to feed to the Shortway.

The clincher argument centers around the fact the Shortway will save 100 miles between New York and Cleveland over any other route, including the Pennsylvania Turnpike and the New York Thruway. This is a point which should be exploited to the fullest as the Shortway Association presses its drive for funds to finance the work.

American Tourists Get Cuba's Special Welcome

Havana, Cuba: Taxi drivers in this ancient city of walls and sunlight and flamboyant foliage have all the fun of a bunch of Bay Boys on a roller coaster. As one car hurtles past others, skimming the curb and a few fenders without damage, 15 horns honk long and loud in delight at the accomplishment of the brave.

Half-laughing, half-earnest streams of Spanish hurled at the losing contenders are uttered with the exuberance necessary to expressive peoples. These drivers love their work and approach each new trip as their most exciting adventure. They like tourists tax as does all of Cuba, for whom tourism is a $6 million industry so far this year.

They love their city and are bent on handing over its keys to visiting Americans. Or at the very least, permitting their cabs to be engaged for as much sightseeing as the traffic will bear. "I will" they say at any destination. "Thirty minutes, an hour? I will." And a ticket stub is pressed into hot little tourist hands whereby to claim the same driver for further sightseeing.

After years of making the favorite tourist rounds—Sans Souci, the casinos, Sloppy Joe's, the Country Club gardens, the shops—a certain inevitable boredom might have overtaken these Latin chaps. But that's not so. At the visitor's bid for a ride to President's Palace or Veradero Beach the taxi driver's eyes light up, Madame—such inspiration! Señor—what originally, what a captivating notion has struck you! To the Capitol we dash, a torrent of its splendors exploded from the front seat. The Italian marble halls, the gold leaf and foot-thick mahogany panels—magnifico! And the taxi waits without while we walk within.

Then past the squat glass case of the new American Embassy which birds and people are constantly walking through and cutting themselves up considerably. On to the old city with its crumbling walls, across the harbor to Morro Castle, dining at Zaragoza and on for a look at some fast jazz. The taxi, it waits.

They like us in Cuba. "It is so advertised, and if anyone feels mistreated chow could that be?" he is requested to phone to the Cuban Tourist Commission, a government department which takes a block in the Havana Post to say: "Visitors to Cuba are extended a cordial greeting and our services for information of all kinds. It is our aim that our distinguished guests feel perfectly at home . . ."

Well, the cab drivers couldn't have put it better. Gracias, amigos. We had a lovely time.

Hale and hearty at the age of eighty, George Moore, famous Irish novelist, startled everybody by his continuing clarity of thought and physical well-being.

"To what do you attribute your great good health in your eightieth year?" asked a reporter.

Moore replied cheerfully, "It's because I never smoked, drank, or touched a girl until I was almost eleven years old."

Moore was napping in his easy chair—snoring a bit, too—while the new maid tiptoed about, cleaning up. When she came out into the kitchen, Mrs. Elbogen was waiting to check up on her.

"Adele," she demanded, "are you sure you watered my hanging plant in the drawing room?"

"Yes, ma'am," said Adele emphatically. "If you listen close you can hear it dropping on Mr. Elbogen's head."

This was clearly foreshadowed in the committee's secret deliberations.

In the weeks the momentous measure was being considered, Ready was mentioned at this hearing of Chotiner's letter to the White House.

There was no mention at this hearing of Chotiner's letter to the White House.

These blasts brought some details from Van Dyke.

"Russia has made three loans to Yugoslavia totaling $194,000,000," he reported. "They are using these loans at two percent. Also, Poland has given Yugoslavia $20,000,000 and Czechoslovakia has offered $75,000,000 in loans and credits. All of these proposals have been accepted, so it is clear that the Reds' overtures are very sizable and important."

This is how soggy and humid once in a while a sultry moon of July and August days to come—so you duck out of the sticky office and wander around for a while, looking for a lazy way to shoot away the daylight. Ultimately you end up in Shimer's warehouse over in the West Sixties, now perhaps the city's most noted graveyard for the old theater scenery. On the third floor you find what it is you seek.

Under the watchful, nervous eye of Leonard Sillman, a man who looks like Maurice Evans, the cast of New Faces of 1956 is engaged in putting together a show that will open in Boston in less than a week. Sillman has had a good deal to do with the success of Eartha Kitt, Ronny Graham, Eve Arden, Van Johnson, Imogene Coca, et al., and now he has gathered together some more "new" talent and is getting ready to showcase it.

By June 14, the new Faces will be on Broadway and Sillman will be crossing his fingers that his four-year search for fresh, unfamiliar faces has ended successfully.

You pick out an old chair next to an old friend named Bill O'Brien who is helping to stage-manage the show, and you lean back and light a cigarette and watch the girls dance.

Rehearsals halls are here, there and everywhere in New York and this has been one of the best-known ones since Plain and Fancy did its preliminary roadwork here. Scattered around are pieces of staircase, mirrors, rickety old sofas, buckets of sand, an amiable dog named Slugger who belongs to the stage manager, a phonograph, assorted sizes of chorus girls and boys and a man in a small red beard who sits at an old desk and writes steadily all the time you are there.

There even is a female impersonator named T. C. Jones, of Julian Eltinge has one of these odd artists been seen on Broadway, and when somebody tells you that Jones is very good at his trade, you wonder a little why anybody would want particularly to be good at it.

Robert S. Allen Reports

Senate Committee To Call Further Chotiner Hearings

Washington, May 22.—That dynamite-loaded investigation of Murray Chotiner is headed for another turbulent round of sensational headlines.

The Senate Investigating Committee is secretly grilling a number of witnesses in preparation for holding more public hearings on the clients and cases of the Los Angeles attorney who has played a key role in Vice President Nixon's meager political career.

Under still-incomplete plans, Senator John McClellan (D., Ark.), chairman, contemplates probing, among other matters, the following:

A letter Chotiner sent to the White House regarding an airline case pending before the Civil Aeronautics Board. This letter, addressed to President Eisenhower, was referred to the CAB, which later ruled against Chotiner's client.

"There has been a certain rise in neutralism in Europe," he said, "but I don't think that our giving aid to some neutral countries is encouraging neutralism."

Rep. Richards cited the continued strength of the Communist party in France and Italy as a serious factor.

At the impending hearings, those slated for interrogation include Chotiner, Deputy Attorney General William Rogers, CAB officials, airline executives, and a group of Chotiner's clients.

Rogers, also a close friend of Vice President Nixon, is to be questioned particularly about an inter-office memorandum on Chotiner. This mysterious document, reportedly issued by Rogers, came to light during the first set of hearings several weeks ago. Justice authorities have so far refused to turn it over to the committee.

Chotiner's letter to the White House was tipped off to the committee by an airline official. He said he learned about it at the CAB.

Chotiner has testified he acted as attorney for two airlines. One was North American Airlines seeking certification as a schedule carrier; the other was California Central Airline that wanted to expand into Mexico. Under questioning, Chotiner also disclosed he discussed these cases with Charles F. Willis, White House assistant, who has since resigned.

These blasts brought some details from Van Dyke.

"Russia has made three loans to Yugoslavia totaling $194,000,000," he reported. "They are using these loans at two percent. Also, Poland has given Yugoslavia $20,000,000 and Czechoslovakia has offered $75,000,000 in loans and credits. Bathroom Casements Draw Rust

STEEL casement windows in a bathroom are peculiarly susceptible to rust, exposed as they are to high humidity.

To protect them, first remove all rust with sandpaper, then clean the metal with steel wool and turpentine. Apply a coat of red lead or other rust inhibitive paint, allowing plenty of time for drying.

Trim

Finish the outside of the window frame with a good quality trim paint, applying at least two coats. The inside should be finished with a top grade enamel.

After baths and showers, open the window to ventilate the room and dissipate the moisture on glass and metal. High humidity with its consequent damage can also be reduced by an exhaust fan.

DESIGN B-386. This plan should appeal to a couple that needs an extra bed room, or to a small family that needs to keep the cost down.

One of its attractive features is the small center hall which allows perfect circulation between rooms without wasting any space. It is planned for the most economical construction, from its simple rectangular shape to the grouping of plumbing pipes leading to the bath, kitchen and laundry. There is a full basement, lots of closet space, combination kitchen-dinette, recessed bath tub and good wall space for furniture.

Exterior finish is wide siding, with shutters, wrought iron railings and asphalt shingles. Floor area is 768 sq. ft. and cubage is 14,592 cu. ft., including basement.

For further information about DESIGN B-386, write the Small House Planning Bureau, St. Cloud, Minn. In Canada, the Small House Planning Bureau of Canada, St. John, New Brunswick.

Knotty Pine Paneling Now Popular In Modern Kitchens

THE MODERN DESIRE for warmth and charm in every room is leading to increased use of knotty pine paneling in bathrooms.

It is used for cabinet work, for the walls, for doors, for valance boards and for ceilings.

Properly treated for the abrupt changes in humidity and temperature occurring in bathrooms due to steamy showers and hot baths, it is trouble-free and is easy to maintain.

Tips

The following installation tips are suggested by the Western Pine Association:

Pre-fit the panels and woodwork, but before installing them in place cover every square inch of surface—front, back, ends and edges—with a water repellent. This will help retard moisture absorption.

Install after drying. Then apply a minimum of three coats of varnish or lacquer.

Shellac Needs Special Storage

DON'T STORE shellac in bottles where it will get a lot of sunlight and be sure that the container has a top that can be closed tight.

Also don't store shellac, even overnight in a metal container.

PORCH FLOORS are subjected to excessive wear and all kinds of weather. Special exterior floor paints are manufactured to give the greatest amount of service possible. Cement porch floors, if they haven't been painted before, should first be primed with a special cement primer, then finished with rapid-drying cement floor paint.

Special Paint For Porches

IF YOU PLAN to paint exterior siding above masonry, such as a wood-sided gable over brick veneer, ask your paint dealer for a chalk-resistant paint which will not wash down on the masonry.

Apply Paint From End Of Brush

NEVER overburden a brush when you dip it into a paint can. Apply the paint from the end not the sides. Learn how to use a smooth, back and fourth stroke that works the paint into the surface.

In starting to paint a wall, begin in the upper left hand corner of a surface and swing your brush to right, as far as you can comfortably reach.

Paint a strip from top to bottom, then begin again at the top. Complete one side wall before starting another.

Architect Reveals Special Design

THERE ARE times when today's housewife wants to shut her kitchen off from her living-dining area, but finds it difficult with the popular "designed for open living" type of house.

Architect Frank Lloyd Wright has solved this problem with a series of hardwood plywood panels joined by piano hinges. When not in use, the panels—which match living room paneling and kitchen cabinets—fold flat against the wall.

Heat Drain Line

WHEN kitchen sink drains become partially clogged because they are full of grease, try heating up the drain with a heat lamp. The heat will soften up the grease so that it can be flushed through the line with hot water.

OUTDOOR FIREPLACE

It's fun to build your own fireplace, especially when you can do it in a day. This is a simple outdoor fireplace that can be built in a day.

It's built of brick, but the brick is not ordinary. It's made of hollow blocks, which are hollow on the inside, so that they can be filled with sand or cement.

The blocks are made of concrete, so they are very strong and durable. They are also very light, so they are easy to move around.

King Urnmar Of Babylon First To Use Ceramic Tile

TODAY'S MODERN BATHROOM, waterproof and handsome, can be traced far back some 5,000 years to King Urnmar of Babylon.

Archaeologists believe that the ancient monarch had the first ceramic tile bath in history, and it was his bathroom which led to the modern one of today.

King Urnmar, even then, preferred a shower to a tub. He had his servants splash water on him the water draining off on the tiled floor.

Preferred

Today, ceramic tile is still preferred material for modern baths. It now comes in some 200 different colors and a variety of shapes and sizes the ancients never dreamed of.

Discovery Of Hidden Talent Leads To New Career Of Art For Bangor Student At ESSTC

By Leonard Randolph

TO A DEDICATED teacher few things are more rewarding than the discovery of talent or a sensitive, intelligent mind in a student.

Most of the time the teacher fights an uphill war against minds determined not to be indoctrinated by knowledge in most of its purely scholastic forms.

In the end, a good teacher wins the fight. And most of the students in his classes come out of their year-long encounter with education with considerably more learning than they thought they would.

To the ordinary student education is often somewhat similar to the process of osmosis—a lot of it seeps through the tissues of resistance in spite of the student's guard against it.

This is true, if in no other area of education, in the field of the fine arts.

Discussion of creative arts is often limited to the accomplishments of highly-trained, regimented individuals who have been "instructed" in the ways of creativity. Most good teachers recognize the fact that to "understand" art you must first build your own sensitivity to it and then work from there.

To be "creative", however, it is not necessary to have formal training—a truth which often slides past in the prevailing winds of education. Creativity, more than anything else, depends upon the psychological conditioning, the environment (either good or bad). It makes no difference, since each child reacts differently to each environment) and the attitude of the child toward himself.

The development of a "natural" artistic ability in a child may have its roots in something entirely divorced from art or education. Many times the "hairs" for drawing, the "raw talent" for painting goes unnoticed throughout the child's life and may never be developed.

But many times, too, the talent is seen and pointed out and encouraged.

This, basically, is what happened this year at East Stroudsburg State Teachers College in a class on teaching art to grade school students.

Dr. Eugene Oxbandler is the instructor. The class meets in an art "studio" on the second floor of Oakes Hall, now the oldest building on the campus.

The studio is equipped with long tables, benches, cabinets, sinks and a large number of chairs. It also has an electrically-operated kiln which is used to bake pieces of sculpture made by students in the class.

Its main piece of equipment, however, could not be bought by the college if it tried. This is the enthusiasm of students in the class.

One of those students is a 19-year-old Bangor RD 1 girl named Doris Moyer. Doris, like most of the other students in the class, had no previous formal art training.

At Bangor High School she majored in business education. In her sophomore year she joined the school's art club. Nothing much happened.

This year, as part of the work she was to do in Oxbandler's class, Doris did a disproportionate male figure in clay. It was the first work she "handed in." The instructor said nothing about the first piece of sculpture.

The second work Doris turned in was an ashtray, sculptured and well done but still not too much unlike many other things students had done in the past.

It was with her third piece of work for the class that the size and scope of Doris Moyer's natural talent for sculpture became apparent.

Although it was simply done, the sculpture packed a hard, emotional punch. There were two figures in the work—one a monk, the other (the girl explained later) "a sinner". In detail and line the work showed the results of an extraordinary, sensitive talent.

Looking at it, the instructor felt he recognized the beginnings of a career in art. He did not say this. Instead he praised the work and urged the girl to turn in more sculpture, started her on drawing

Couple From Germany Married

Reconsecrating the civil marriage vows they took in Munich Germany in a religious ceremony before the candle-lit altar of Grace Evangelical Lutheran Church, East Stroudsburg, the former Miss Gertrude Bertha Zier and Lothar Schneider were married by Rev. William F. Wunder on Saturday afternoon.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Zierer of Strubing, Lower Bavaria, Germany. The bridegroom, son of Mrs. Meta Schneider and the late Frederick E. Schneider of 208, North Courtland Street, East Stroudsburg, formerly of Cologne, Germany.

They met and married in a civil ceremony in the courts of Munich, Germany, on October 10 when Lothar was serving in the U. S. Army.

Just Between Us

—by Bobby Westbrook

Every stable element in the universe has its radioactive twin, the DAR was told on Monday, and yesterday I kept thinking that every story seemed, also, to generate a twin.

At least in my mind, I came up with two pairs, at least. Take the story of the German couple remarried at the Grace Lutheran Church and match it with the story of the young DP family that the Married Couples Class met at the boat yesterday morning.

Somehow I kept wishing my German consisted of more than how to say patty-cake, patty-cake, in German, and Ich liebe dich. It would be pleasant to be able to do something to make them feel at home, but fortunately there are those who speak it more fluently and are doing a noble job in explaining us to them.

THE Wyckoff SHOPPER

It was a great disappointment to me that I never did get close enough to Gladys Miller to shake her hand and take a really good look at a woman who knows more about retailing and public opinion than most of us will learn in a lifetime.

Miss Miller's name may be familiar to you through her articles in "Family Circle" and other publications, but you may not know that her incredibly successful career includes being consultant to the Lamp Division of General Electric, assistant publisher of "New Homes Guide" and "Home Modernizing" magazines, and consultant to the quartermaster corps of the United States Army on homes here and in Europe. She is forthright and honest in her speaking . . . a pleasant-faced woman whom I glimpsed only now and then, but remember for a pert but with equally pert quills, above a conservatively tailored ensemble.

Gladys Miller addressed the recent Curtain and Drapery Club luncheon which I attended with Margaret LaBar, who had the honor of becoming sergeant-at-arms. Just what the sergeant-at-arms of a Drapery Club does (she has her picture taken for retailing newspapers) I'm not sure . . . but as long as Maggie can get to New York occasionally to meet such congenial people as Curtain and Drapery enthusiasts, and is willing to let me share the fun, I won't question her duties.

In her talk, Mrs. Miller was more than a bit critical of the prevalent laissez-faire attitude toward the consumer, simply because, having reached "the crossroads today in retailing, we're busy making money." Buyers, whether or not they realize it, Mrs. Miller contends, are working against the greatest odds ever, with the least help . . . but they all too frequently rely upon the loyalty of customers. "The loyalty people once felt toward certain stores is practically gone today," she stressed, and an amazing volume of business is lost annually through "walkout dollars." This loss points up the need for better buying, increased awareness on the part of buyers, and local consciousness. "Stock," according to Mrs. Miller, is too often purchased from a national rather than a local viewpoint."

Her suggestions for better retailing were numerous, but would hardly interest you as a consumer. Nevertheless you might like hearing some of the statistics Mrs. Miller presented. Right this minute, in every home in the United States, there are approximately five windows that need decorating. If you doubt this, count the windows in your own home that are shabby, bare or uninteresting. You'll find the figure fairly accurate. When you consider that this applies to 40,000,000 homes, you realize how many households everywhere should be seeking the advice of people like our Mrs. LaBar. And you realize too how necessary it is that buyers like our Maggie keep on their toes, alert to both local tastes and far-reaching trends.

What is my purpose in telling you all this today? For one thing, to show you that your importance to us as a customer is deep, vital, and genuine. You are statistics to us . . . but even more, you are very important human beings with a yen to live beautifully within the limits of your budget. You are a challenge to us, and the friendship you have bestowed on us in more than eighty years of merchandising is something we must fight to hold. We cannot be "surfeited with success" . . . but we must work every minute of the merchandising week to catch your eye and hold it.

Most stores are deadly serious about these obligations to their clientele. Here at Wyckoff's we are no exception. But while I'm being frank, there's another reason I wrote this article. I wanted you to be aware of those windows of yours. With millions of them in millions of homes, yours have to look terrific to brave the competition. How DO they look? If you're shuddering, don't SHUTTER—just give them the full treatment with something fresh, and new, and interesting. Something from our drapery department. Something worth "putting under glass."

Presenting The Pedestal

Pedestals are big fashion this year. These raised supports are seen in traditional as well as modern furniture. Metal is the most popular material but whether metal, wood or a combination of both is used, these airy bases have a sculptured look. Simplicity without severity gives the pedestal an elegant air which combines the best part of the past and present.

IN LESS THAN 80 hours a million or more television viewers and some 25,000 on-the-scene fans saw what should be the final act for two former boxing champions of the world.

Last Friday, a shell of the former middleweight king, Bobo Olson, fell not surprisingly, before the well-timed left hook of champion Sugar Ray Robinson. Monday night, an unknown who goes by the name of Sugar Beetha put the finishing touches on a slow Ezzard Charles, ex-heavyweight boss who can now be known as the Cincinnati Cobra without a sting.

It saddened this writer and we are sure many more to see the former champs, who might not be the best in their trade but who were good enough to head a pack of others, go down the hill to what could be called the end of the trail.

Our best thoughts of Ez were not when the Ohio battler was king of the heavies but after his setback by Jersey Joe Walcott. In fact, the real Charles became known when he was battered into oblivion the first time by Rocky Marciano.

That night, Charles went into the ring known far and wide as the boxer who would be lucky to stay two rounds with the Rock from Brockton, Mass. We were one of those who steadfastly agreed with this general feeling.

However, when Ezzard went down finally from the continuous pounding we came away from the arena with the belief that the Cincinnati had given the most courageous exhibition of his career in a losing cause.

1st ADD OFF THE RECORD RIS
This was where Ez could have put away the gloves. But like all boxers (who always have a good one left), he continued. And the decline became more and more apparent with each succeeding match. Monday night was the climax.

If the boxing fathers want to do something worthwhile, aside from getting their names in print for minor work, they could turn Charles to pasture before the veteran of 34 is unable to find the ring.

Entries For Swim Meet

THE YMCA is still looking for registrations for the annual Invitational Swimming Meet to be held Friday, June 1, at the "Y" pool.

Officials said Cadet and Junior divisions entries are coming in fine but there were many openings in the Senior division—boys 15 to 17 years of age.

Hope To Develop

The YMCA is trying to develop an interest in team swimming for the Stroudsburgs and hope this type of meet will be a beginning.

Last year's records:

Cadets—20 yd. free—Bartch, 11.08; 40 yd. free—Bartch, 55.00; 40 yd. breaststroke—Bartch, 55.00; Juniors—20 yd. free—Bridge, 11.04; 40 yd. back—Bridge, 11.04; 20 yd. breast—Gillip, 16.40; 40 yd. breast—Gillip, 16.40; 40 yd. back—Oster, 21.40; 40 yd. breast—Gillip, 16.20; 100 yd. free—Bridge, 18.15; 100 yd. individual medley—Preston, 1.02.5; Seniors—20 yd. free—DePuse, 14.20; 20 yd. back—DePuse, 17.00; 20 yd. breaststroke—Shook, 22.20; 40 yd. breast—Bartch, 26.40; 40 yd. back—Wahlmark, 34.11; 100 yd. free—Shook, 1.03.5.

Charges Yankees With Irregularity

CLEVELAND, May 22 (AP)—Hank Greenberg, general manager of the Cleveland Indians, said today the New York Yankees were using the disabled list to retain an extra player.

All clubs are supposed to cut down to 25 players, excluding returned service veterans and disabled players, by midnight Wednesday.

The Yankees placed infielder Bill Hunter, on the disabled list yesterday, Greenberg said he told Commissioner Ford Frick about the Hunter case.

Not Protecting

"I am not protesting but as qualifying Commissioner Frick with the fact Hunter worked out with the Yankees before the game, which is contrary to the bulletin he issued last year," Greenberg told a reporter. "The Yankees are using the disabled list to retain an extra player."

Bangor Girl Finds Talent For Art

No one could say where the "career" had really begun, in what year of childhood the creative spark had first been set off. There was really no need to know.

More important was the fact that a girl of 19 who can create the substance of beauty out of her own mind and emotion now has the chance to shape and form her talent to its fullest strength.

Out of the shews of strength may come greatness.

And this is a marvelous thing to find — even in its most unfinishing form — in a classroom.

When you're a teacher you seldom create new worlds for yourself or break the barriers to new horizons. Your job is to show these things to others.

If you can help them find the worlds or walk toward the edge of the horizon of greatness, then you fulfill the greatest function teaching has. And sometimes that makes all the difference.

Village Moves Iron Statue

ELMSFORD, N. Y. May 22 (P)—Village officials have moved an eight-ton cast iron statue of a race horse into a prominent place in front of the village hall.

The village inherited the statue which formerly decorated the entrance of the old Yonkers Racetrack. The horse represents Dollar, champion trotter of the 19th century.
